April 2021 Meetings April 5, 2021 Catching the Wire The Joint Precision Approach and Landing System (JPALS)

Wayne R. Scott,
Colonel, USAF (Retired)

On April 5, Wayne R. Scott, Colonel USAF (Retired), gave a presentation on the Joint Precision Approach and Landing System (JPALS). JPALS was the last program that Scott led before he retired in 2005. JPALS is a system designed to make landing on aircraft carriers safer for naval pilots.

Of course, aviation is inherently dangerous, especially in the Navy operating off carriers. The Naval pilot's challenge is to approach a landing platform that is moving and pitching and touch the deck on the spot to catch the arresting wire.

Wayne described the systems installed on aircraft carriers to assist the pilot in locating the ship and approaching the deck to safely land.

He then showed a display from an F-18's cockpit what a pilot sees in poor visibility. Many new systems have been put in place on aircraft carriers to prevent a bad landing on their short and narrow surfaces.

One of these systems, JPALS, is currently installed on F-35B/C's and planned for the Sting Ray unmanned tanker.

It supports landing aboard aircraft carriers (CVN) and amphibious assault ships (LH).

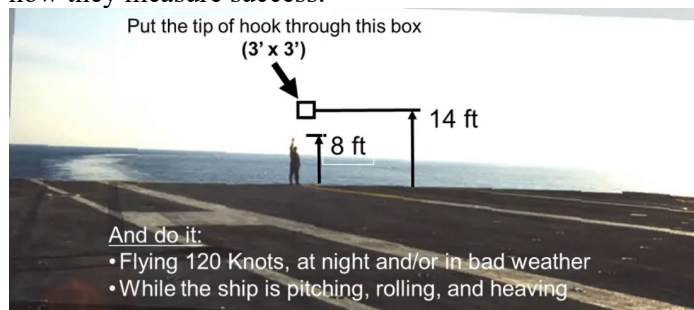

Its GPS based as opposed to the current radar, radio, or visual-based systems on CVN and LH. It is a precise and reliable system to help naval pilots touch down within 50 cm. It has high continuity and availability with very few interruptions in service, even in challenging environments such as poor weather, rough seas, and hostile jamming conditions.

JPALS is not a flight controller. It does not send control commands (e.g., turn left/right, go up/down) to an aircraft. Instead, it is an autopilot for landing to be used by the pilot to provide navigation to the touch-down spot.

The use of unmanned aerial vehicles (UAVs) is intended to provide navigation data to the UAV pilot.

Wayne explained how JPALS differs from the MAGIC CARPET system used on F/A-18E/F/G aircraft.

He then went into details on how it works and showed how they measure success.

JPALS is currently military-only. Only over the past few years has it been prepared for use in the US Navy and Marine Corps. The first carrier to be deployed with the system was the USS Wasp in 2017 when deployed to WestPac. JPALS is transportable and designed to be set up quickly and work in a variety of environments. An even more simple system, eJPALS, is being currently developed that can be set up at a location within 2 hours. It will be put to use at Northern Edge 2021, a military joint training exercise in Alaska this May.

North American F-100 Super Sabre

On April 12, 2021, we watched a video on the North American F-100 Super Sabre. The North American F-100 Super Sabre served with the United States Air Force from 1954 to 1971 and with the Air National Guard until 1979. It was the first of the Century Series of USAF jet fighters and the first USAF fighter capable of supersonic speed in level flight. When it became operational, it held the world record for the fastest fight below the speed of sound and the fastest fighter to fly faster than the speed of sound.

It was not without problems, and many crashed. It was nicknamed "Hun." The landing was called "controlled crash landings."

The video documented the successes of North American Aviation which designed and built the WWII and Korean War P-51 and the Korean War jet F-86. The F-100 was designed as a fighter/bomber to carry a wide array of weapons.

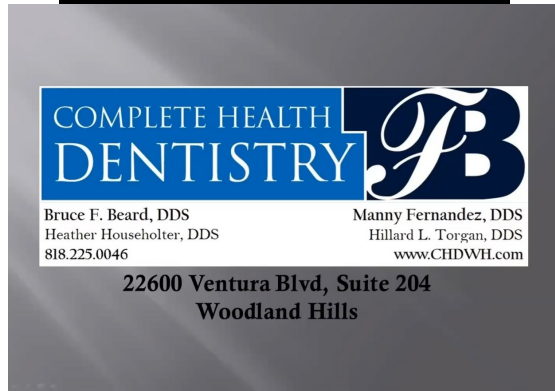

203 F-100A single-seat day fighters were built, 476 F-100C fighter bombers with probe and drogue refueling were built. 1,274 F-100D Single-seat fighter-bomber, with more advanced avionics, larger wing, larger tail fin, and landing flaps were built. 339 F-100F, the two-seat version were delivered between 1959 and 1961. The F-100F was used in Thailand as the first Wild Weasel aircraft.

In April 1961, the F-100 became the first USAF combat jets to enter the Vietnam War. They flew more sorties in Vietnam than the P-51 flew in WWII.

The video documented many of the Vietnam missions flown by both active duty and Air National Guard units.

The USAF Thunderbirds operated the F-100C from 1956 until 1964. After briefly converting to the F-105 Thunderchief, the team flew F-100Ds from July 1964 until November 1968, before converting to the F-4E Phantom II.

People In the News

Ed Reynolds, above, is well-known to the west valley from the Wings Over Wendy's meetings Mondays in Woodland Hills and Tuesdays in Tarzana. Reynolds is a retired USAF Lt. Colonel who has visited every country in the world. Since 2007 he wrote journals of his trips, which he turned into a book. Do Not Travel There - Tourist Travel in Department of State Level 4 Countries was just published. Reynolds tells how and when he visited the countries and the experiences he had touring them. On many visits, he traveled alone and in dangerous conditions. He writes about private tours of famous architectural sites by the Curator, his guides' personal thoughts, and the people he met. "Let Ed Reynolds take you on a fascinating journey to the countries the US government doesn't want you to visit. Do Not Travel There! is a must-read for every inquisitive person who wondered what it would be like," Said Dennis McCarthy, a columnist for the Daily News. The book is available at Amazon. com.

Boyd Davis in the stacks at Next Chapter Books

His "Next Chapter" on Retiring Was Opening a Used Book Store

By Kathleen Sterling

"Oh, to be surrounded by books," said Lemony Snicket.

It's the dream of many a serious reader, (including this writer) to have books within reach at any time, to be surrounded by books, to own a book store. (If you don't know who Lemony Snicket is though, perhaps it's not your dream.)

But it was for Boyd Davis, a retired naval navigator, who decided to navigate the world of booksellers instead.

In 2006, Davis rented a small store in Canoga Park and opened Next Chapter Books. He had no inventory, but borrowed books on consignment from other independent bookstores to fill some of his shelves.

He then went hunting on his own, had people walking in the door to sell books and had book scouts bringing boxes of books to sell, until he reached the over 38,000 volumes he has in the store today.

When you walk into the store you walk through what Davis calls the "Fine Arts Lobby," which contains poetry, music, theatre, entertainment industry, biographical, photograph and art books. (Continued page 6)

There are some collectible books in a glass case near the front desk, but Next Chapter is more where you go for copies of the classics, a paperback novel, a book on a subject of interest, or a one-off title from years ago. In a nod to his past occupation, there's a large military books section.

It's what sets him off from a Barnes and Noble, Davis told Valley News Group. "I've got a zillion more titles and some really obscure ones. I had a customer looking for a mystery written in 1948. He only knew it had 'time' in the title. But combing through our mystery section, he found that one particular book. He'd been looking for it for six or seven years."

Davis cleans and makes minor repairs to the books if needed. He's got good lighting above the stacks, so searching for titles is easy. The main part of the store is divided between non-fiction - history, philosophy, general biographies, metaphysics, sports, business, science and more, and the rest of the selection is literature, spy novels, children's and young adult books, mystery and fantasy.

And does the reality of running a bookstore live up to the fantasy?

Davis laughed, "Moderately well. It takes a lot of work so I don't get as much time to read as I thought." Has he read them all? Davis laughs and says he's a big reader - but a slow reader! The store also keeps him busy as he runs it himself. "I'm always trying to replace books on the shelves, handle incoming books and buying new ones. I try to read while having lunch at my desk."

He prides himself that he's one of a few independent bookstores still open in the valley. He credits that to a lot of SCORE counseling he got when he opened.

And now 15 years later, he's still working his way through reading - and sharing - those 38,000 books.

Next Chapter Books is located at 21616 Sherman Way. Phone 704-5865 or visit nextchapterbooks.com. Gift certificates and book trade-ins available.

Honor a Hometown Hero From District 12

Councilman John Lee, whose west valley district includes West Hills, Chatsworth, and Reseda, is honoring "hometown heroes" with a military service recognition program.

Lee said, "The Council District 12 annual program recognizes our community's men and women who are currently serving in the Armed Forces, veterans who have served in the past, or deceased veterans of the past."

Street banners featuring a military member will be designed, printed, and installed for one year - from July to June - acknowledging each hero's service to the City and the nation. Quantity is limited, and the fee is $250 per banner. Honorees must be District 12 residents or an immediate family member to a District 12 resident.

The fee and residency are waived for Wings Over Wendy's members.

Placement of the banners will be determined by Councilmember John Lee's office. Available space is determined on a first come, first serve basis.

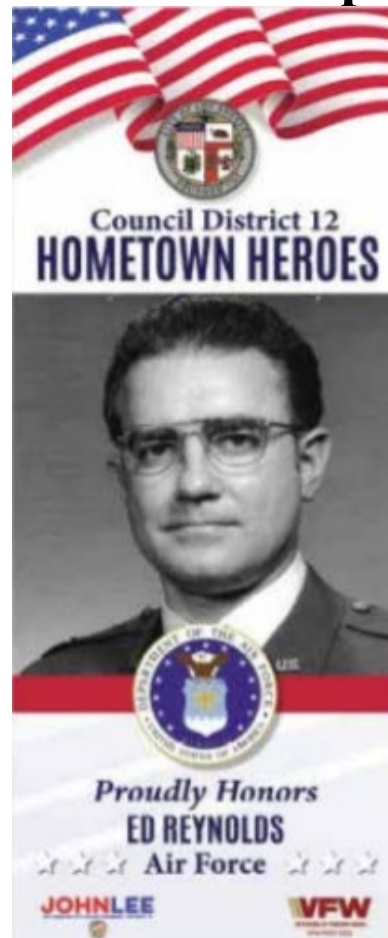

The application requires the military service person's name and branch of service, proof of residency or graduation in Council District 12, proof of service and a high-resolution photograph.

You must designate the honoree as Proudly Honors - for those currently serving, Thanks - for veterans who have served, or In Memory Of, for veterans of the past.

Completed applications for the 2021 program should be submitted by May 1, 2021. This is the perfect way to honor a distinguished family member who has served his or her country for a birthday, Father's Day (June 20), or Memorial Day (May 31).

For more information on the Hometown Heroes program call (818) 882-1212 or email matthew.vallecilla@lacity.org.

In Memoriam

We learned that one of Wings Over Wendy's members “flew west” during March and one of our most faithful members in April 2021.

Richard Ruby

Feb 1, 1936 - Mar 17, 2021

We were notified that Richard Ruby has passed away from a heart attack on March 17, 2021. He was a veteran of the US Army from 1956 to 1958, serving as a Radio Teletype Operator in Korea.

Lezar Saunders

Jul 26, 1932 – Apr 15, 2021

We were saddened to learn that Lezar Saunders' heart failed on April 15, 2021. Lezar was a native Los Angeles resident, born in the Los Angeles County Hospital on July 26, 1932. He is survived by his beloved wife Carole, sister, Ina Friedman, children Bruce and Dana, and granddaughter Georgina. Lezar grew up in City Terrace and graduated from Woodrow Wilson High School. He participated in rope climbing, football, baseball, and track & field and was elected Vice President of the Student Council.

Following high school, he volunteered to join the US Coast Guard and served throughout the Pacific, Japan, Alaska, and Hawaii. He then had a successful career as an electrician. Lezar was one of the members that would stay at Wendy's after the Monday meetings for lunch. He entertained his lunch mates with his stories from his service and travels. Lezar was the member that arranged the Thursday luncheons. He would select the restaurant that provided veterans or Senior discounts, altered them on the number of attendees, and would arrive early to reserve the tables. Lezar would also provide coffee and donuts to our members when we waited for the bus for our tours.

He will be missed. May he rest in peace.

Prayers

Unfortunately, several of our active members were are recuperating from their injuries or illnesses. Our prayers are for a speedy recovery and a return to our meetings:

Foreword by Major General

Jeannie M. Leavitt, USAF

The inspiring story of a girl from Depression-era Kansas who overcame tremendous challenges and defied convention to become an elite pilot—one of the few American women to fly fighter aircraft during World War II.

"Nadine Ramsey is a true hero. Her story needs to be told. Taking Flight does that in a very readable way."
